

Uber Paying up $10 Million For Lying About the Quality of Their Background Checks

BY KEISHA HATCHETT

Geeky writer who loves Deadpool cosplayers; follow @Keishamaze for a good time.

🕒 APR 07, 2016

SHARE

TWEET

NOW TRENDING

Where to Buy 'Cream White' Adidas Yeezy Boost 350 V2s

Sole Collector

Watch Kendrick Lamar's 45-Minute Interview with Zane Lowe

Pigeons and Planes

Former Patriots Beat Writer Shares Chilling Story About Aaron...

Image via Flickr

Uber claimed that it uses industry leading background checks to vet their drivers and now those words are coming back to bite them where it hurts most-the bank. The rideshare service is about to pay at least $10 million for misleading customers.

According to Time, district attorneys in San Francisco and Los Angeles filed lawsuits in 2014 over such claims and argued that taxi drivers are actually more thorough because they include fingerprint checks. Somewhere, disgruntled taxi drivers are honking their horns in victory.

RELATED

Woman Pulls Up to Fight in an Uber, Gets Beat and Ubers Home

Son of Notorious Landlord Calls Uber Driver "Minimum Wage F****T"

Rather than argue. Uber decided it was in their best interest to settle. It's hard to argue stop claiming that their background checks were top notch.

WATCH NOW

Tags: News, California, Lawsuits, Uber

 LIKE

 FOLLOW

 CHAT

FROM THE WEB

Sponsored Links

Get Fit. Get Fab. Have Fun!

FabFitFun